Anna Bryngelsson is a member of the firm's practice group for Environmental Law. She advises clients on a wide spectrum of environmental law matters, particularly focusing on permitting/licensing of industrial operations. She has substantial experience of processing in courts and administrative proceedings before authorities, in large and complex processes as well as minor ones.

Anna assists clients in a broad range of regulatory matters, especially in areas relevant to industrial operations. Some of her focus areas are emissions trading (EU ETS) and legislation concerning plant protection products.

In connection with transactions, Anna advises on management of environmental risks such as contaminated land or compliance issues.
